

Hello. With the state of our environment and all the challenges that it faces I wonder why we would encroach on it even more. What happens when there is simply nothing left? Do we really have to see more loss before we take action? Leave what little is left alone. Dont touch it and it will take care of itself. Leave this refuge in place for the wildlife that depends on it.

Kevin Swail